

South Africa

South Africa may be best known for wildlife, jet lag, and world-class golfers, but there are plenty of fine courses to explore. The Links at Fancourt, considered by many to be the best course in the country, was built on a benign piece of real estate, carefully contoured to play as a seaside links—minus the rugged UK climate. Humewood is an old-school, classic seaside links, complete with all the rustic, quaint amenities. And for dramatic golf played on huge cliffs high above the ocean, Pinnacle Point offers an amazing and challenging test of golf.
